March Is The Month For Brides

It was rice and wedding bells for Miss Frances Pearl De Freiz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. De Freiz of 4030 Madison Ave., and Ellis P. Smith, son of Mrs. Uno Smith, 836 McFarland Ave., Ogden, recently.

The marriage was solemnized in the Logan Temple and a reception was at the Fourteenth Ward Recreation Hall in Ogden.

The bride's gown of white net was fashioned princess style with a cluster of orange blossoms on the bodice. She carried red roses.

Her attendants were Miss Charlann Rice, maid of honor, Miss Jacqueline Burish and Miss Kathryn Miller, bridesmaids, and Anna Payne, flower girl.

Grant Smith was best man.

The Prelses are residing in Ogden.

Sharon Findlay

An unpretentious wedding marked the recent uniting in marriage of Miss Sharon Findlay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Parley M. Findlay of Ogden, and Ray C. Price, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Barton.

The ceremony was performed by Frank Faulkner at the home of the bride's parents, in the presence of the immediate families and a small group of intimate friends.

The bride's informal ensemble was a pastel pink suit with beige accessories. Her corsage was of pink camellias and white rosebuds.

Attending the couple were Miss Lois Blood and William Ryan.

The newlyweds are making their home in Ogden.

The bride was feted at a number of parties prior to her marriage.

HAVE WEDDING PLANS—Karyl Ann Ikerd and Thomas M. McKean tell of their wedding to be held on Saturday in Garden Park Ward.

On Saturday: She'll be Mrs. McKean

A romance which began in Sun Valley will be culminated this Saturday in marriage, Karyl Ann Ikerd and Thomas M. McKean met and fell in love at the famous winter resort while they were both working there.

This week-end they will exchange wedding vows in the Garden Park Ward chapel, and will be honored at a reception in the evening at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. McKean, 364 North Twelfth West St. The wedding ceremony will be read by Bishop Frank Murdock.

From Indiana

The bride, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Ikerd of Indianapolis, Indiana, will welcome her father here on Friday. He is flying in for the wedding. The soon-to-weds just arrived in the city from Sun Valley, and will be followed presently by the bride-elect's sister, Marvel Narine Ikerd, also an employe of the "Valley."

Evening Reception

For the evening reception the future bride has asked her sister to stand as her maid of honor. Best man for the bridegroom will be his brother Franklin L. McKean Jr.

The couple are planning a honeymoon to Mexico, and will return to Salt Lake to make their home. Mr. McKean is a former University of Utah student, who will resume studies this fall.

An aunt of the bride-to-be is also planning to come from Idaho for the wedding ceremonies.

TEMPLE WEDDING—Mrs. and Mrs. Richard Paul Romney were married this morning in the Salt Lake Temple.

Former Mary Lou Stone Now Mrs. R. Paul Romney

Early this morning in a Salt Lake Temple ceremony performed by Elder Spencer W. Kimball, of the Council of the Twelve, Mary Lou Stone recited wedding vows with Richard Paul Romney.

Following the wedding, breakfast at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Junius Romney, 1169 Douglas St., honored the just-weds.

The bride, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray D. Stone, 461 East Twenty-first South St., will wear a gown of Japanese silk embroidered with cherry blossoms for her reception this evening in Garden Park Ward. The material was brought from the Far East by the bridegroom, and the gown was designed by the bride. It has short sleeves, a camisole front, shirred bodice and a long train. Her fingertip veil of imported net is caught with a spray of orange blossoms. She will carry an all white shower bouquet of roses and an orchid.

New Mrs. Romney has asked will wear yellow organdy and her sister, Mrs. Paul C. Lyon Jr., carry spring bouquets.

A New Twist For Cool Cotton

By Phyllis Battelle

Old sol and a few million other impressionable males will be bedevilled constantly next summer by visions of feminine charms.

The dainty, practical sunback frock with bolero jacket is to be the number-one item for dress, play and beach-wear.

It can be had at prices that dig deep into the family budget or lightly touch the piggy bank. And in fabrics from striped chambray to mist-grey chiffon.

Buyers for large department stores choose the practical sunback—in gay cotton fabrics with narrow shoulder straps. But they must suit all customers—so they are also selecting a few of the more high-style strapless dresses and those which are built-up in front, dipping to low V's behind.

New Twist

A New York designer, Edwina Patterson, last week introduced a new twist. She startled her preview audience by giving them a floral printed shirtback, vastly full-shirted. Over it was a wrap-around bodice sleeved in a tiny shoulder cape. Although the effect is crisp, cool, casual and reminiscent of beach picnics. With the coat, it was too snooty for anything short of a garden party or patio fiesta.

Another designer introduced a shell linen sunback, with bolero of black alencon lace.

Pastel chambray, open-back frocks are being shown with organdy boleros. Cottons mix with anything this season.

Plaid Print

A sheer cotton made startling because of its large plaid print was the fabric chosen by Frances Rider for a strapless frock as bare as Mr. Hubbard's cupboard. Over it—instead of the usual bolero—draped a shawl of the same plaid material. It was so long that it circled the shoulders, wrapped the arms, and still extended almost to the hem of the 19-inch skirt. Clutching the ends were six-inch fringes . . . making for an incongruous Spanish effect.

Elasticized bodices are giving boning and wiring a run for the money. Instead they have ruffle that is elastic over the bustline, feel secure, and can be sneezed in without fear of mayhem.

The total effect of the elasticized bodice is slenderizing to the average figure.

Towntalkers . . .

April Wedding is Planned

Cupid has struck again. Carol Hudson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Hudson, 2150 Blair St., will become the bride of Eugene B. Thomson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Thomson, 1850 East Seventeenth South St. The wedding will take place April 23 in the Garden Park Ward meetinghouse. A reception will honor the couple following the ceremony.

The bride-to-be has chosen to wear a gown of white marquisette over lace and taffeta. Her sister, Mrs. Helena Jean Shahan, will be matron of honor. Doris Thee Olson and Mary Lu Blake will be bridesmaids. They will stand in gowns of pink sheer crepe fashioned with the bullerina length. Mrs. Shahan will be in an identical gown of blue sheer. Sheryl Jean Shahan, niece of the bride, will be flower girl.

William Thomson will perform best man duties for his brother.

For a honeymoon in the Northwest, the bride-elect has chosen for her going-away outfit, a lavender bolero suit with gray accessories.

Mr. Thomson is at present attending the L. D. S. Business College. He served in the Navy for two years.

TO MARRY—Carol Hudson will recite wedding vows on April 23 with Eugene B. Thomson in Garden Park Ward.

Woman Process Server is Talented

By Dorothy Dean

Edith Fischer is a combination Sarah Bernhardt, Sherlock Holmes and Emily Post. Her job as a process server demands the attributes of the actress, detective and etiquette expert.

Mrs. Fischer is believed to be the only woman operating a process-serving business in the country — and she admits she doesn't always get her man!

But she did catch an Italian countess. And that took a stellar acting performance, some super sleuthing and a knowledge of what tork to use.

The countess was evading a summons in a divorce action. Mrs. Fischer put on her best fuis, dug out the family jewels and called at the countess' apartment.

The countess wasn't in. Mrs. Fischer told the maid she was an old friend who had known her ladyship in Paris, that she was returning immediately and hell couldn't leave without saying hello to the countess.

Went to Dinner

The maid gave Mrs. Fischer the address of friends where the countess was dining.

She went to the address and told the same story. The countess came into the reception hall, not quite remembering the name Mrs. Fischer had made up, but wrecthed in smiles to make up for her slip of memory.

Mrs. Fischer started to reach for the summons, but the countess, who smelled what was coming, quickly tucked her arm in Mrs. Fischer's and led her to the champagne and crystal dinner table.

Introductions were made all around. The countess embellished the story of the Paris friendship for her friends.

While the dessert course was being served, Mrs. Fischer slipped the summons to the countess under the table, smiling the while, and nobody but her ladyship was wiser.

Members of the legal profession, Mrs. Fischer says, are hardest to catch. They know the angles. The lady process server warms up to her story about the promotional New York judge who was too sick for other process servers.

Foiled Judge

This time, Mrs. Fischer had to resort to a tale of woe that made her own husband grimace. The judge, she said, was a sick man, low on the side. For $1500 fee and a $500 retainer he could be persuaded to take a divorce case.

Mrs. Fischer decided her husband (a respectable insurance agent) would have to be a wife-better for the time being.

She went to the judge's office and said she wanted to start divorce proceedings. His associates agreed to take the case. But when Mrs. Fischer argued that for $2000 she should at least be able to see what the judge looked like there was a hitch.

But $2000 isn't their every day share, so they finally ushered her into the judge's office. She slapped the summons at him —and he broke into laughter.

Hires Her

The judge said:

"Look, if you're this good I want to hire you to go after a doctor here in New York who owes me plenty."

The judge has been one of her best customers ever since.

But the "woman" something else again. Mrs. Fischer went to 42nd Avenue office, gave a list of ailments and a case history to the nurse that added up to a threat of death.

Democratic Group Plans Luncheon

Mrs. E. B. Voyles, president of the Democratic Women's Club, announced plans for the annual spring party and luncheon of the Women's Democratic Club will be held on Saturday at 1 p.m. at the Ladies' Literary Club, 850 East South Temple.

The committee on arrangements is Mrs. E. B. Maryon, Mrs. Wm. A. Casler, Mrs. Emmett S. Fowler, Mrs. Chas. Walton, Mrs. C. J. Brooks and Mrs. Anna Anderson.

Mrs. G. N. Davis is in charge of the luncheon. Mrs. Sunday C. Anderson is in charge of the decorations which will carry out the spring motif. Mrs. Emelie L. Brown will have charge of the door prizes. Mrs. C. L. Jack, will be chairman of tickets, and hostess chairman is Mrs. Tracy Welling. Musical entertainment is under the direction of Mrs. Albert Warner.

"WE CAN AND DO SELL FOR LESS"

'Architectural Modern'

Furniture design has always followed and been closely influenced by the trend of building design, and in this group of "Architectural Modern" we have attempted to reflect trends of today's architecture. This is evidenced in the generous use of glass and mirror and the unbroken lines of the design made possible by a better appreciation of the structural characteristics of the materials. This is the "Furniture of Tomorrow" and will remain a source of pleasure and utility indefinitely.
